The True Story of the 2007 Iron Butt Rally “The World’s Toughest Motorcycle Competition”

“It’s a scavenger hunt on steroids.”
“It’s a major, wonderful growth experience.”
“My goal this year is to finish.”
“Overall it’s just fun torture.”

As told by the actual riders, Hard Miles™ documents the events surrounding the 2007 Iron Butt Rally. Billed as the World’s Toughest Motorcycle Competition, the Iron Butt Rally is a unique long-distance motorcycle scavenger hunt. During the grueling 11 day, 11,000 mile rally, competitors battle the elements while riding to bonus destinations across North America.

In this biennial event, people from around the world and from all walks of life come together to participate in this one-of-a-kind motorcycle experience; each rider testing his or her own physical, mental and emotional toughness. Only a few select riders have managed to solve the equation of time, distance and endurance to successfully complete the World’s Toughest Motorcycle Competition.
